Note: The merger of Great Lakes Bank and First Midwest is subject to bank regulatory approvals and other closing conditions.

The following information may pertain to you as a result of the merger between Great Lakes Bank and First Midwest Bank. If you have accounts at both institutions, your newly combined deposits in the resulting institution could exceed the $250,000 normal maximum of deposit insurance provided by the FDIC. In this case, the FDIC will provide supplemental insurance coverage on your accounts for a period of six months from the effective date of the merger. For example, if the transaction were to be on or about September 30, 2014, then your Great Lakes Bank accounts would be insured separately until March 31, 2015. If a Great Lakes Bank certificate of deposit would mature and be renewed under the same terms between September 30, 2014 and March 31, 2015, the supplemental insurance would be effective until the first maturity date after March 31, 2015. Such certificates of deposit that mature between September 30, 2014 and March 31, 2015 and are renewed on any other basis, or that are not renewed and become demand deposits, will be separately insured only until March 31, 2015. The purpose of the supplemental insurance coverage is to provide you an opportunity to restructure any accounts, if needed, to maximize the insurance coverage of your existing accounts. Any account opened or additional deposits to existing accounts after March 31, 2015 will be combined with your existing accounts in the new institution and will not be separately insured.

If you have questions about the supplemental FDIC insurance of your accounts, please call your local banking center.
