Pont de Nemours and Company; DowDuPont Inc.

Commission File No.: 001- 00815

TRANSACTION OVERVIEW:

DEAL SNAPSHOT

The combined company resulting from the merger of Dow and DuPont (DowDuPont) intends to separate into three independent, publicly traded, U.S.-based companies, with such separations expected to occur in the 2017-2018 timeframe, approximately 18-24 months after closing of the merger:

- Agriculture ($16 billion*), consisting of DuPont Crop Protection, DuPont Pioneer and Dow AgroSciences
- Specialty Products ($12 billion*), consisting of DuPont's Nutrition & Health, Industrial Biosciences, Safety & Protection and Electronics & Communications, as well as the Dow Electronic Materials business
- Material Science ($46 billion*), consisting of DuPont's Performance Materials segment, as well as Dow's Performance Plastics, Performance Materials and Chemicals, Infrastructure Solutions, and Consumer Solutions (excluding the Dow Electronic Materials business)

* Based on Dow's and DuPont's net sales as reported in each company's 2015 Form 10-K Filing.

- A merger of equals
- DuPont common shareholders receive 1.282 shares of DowDuPont for each DuPont share
- Dow common shareholders receive 1.00 share of DowDuPont for each Dow share

The Agriculture company's operations will have global business centers in Iowa and Indiana, focused on seed technology and crop protection, with a corporate headquarters in Delaware to provide administrative and executive support.

TRANSACTION BENEFITS:

Strengthening an American Business

- The three intended focused U.S.-based businesses that result from post-merger separations will be able to develop new products more efficiently and optimize production and distribution costs.
- Combining science and technology capabilities means more complete product offerings and the ability to create expanded choice for customers and consumers.
- Together, DowDuPont will be one of the largest industrial R&D investors in the world. The merger will provide greater capacity to invest in targeted discovery and innovation, translating into better and safer products for customers and families.
- This merger is pro-competitive and good for consumers.

Delivering Unparalleled Innovation to Farmers

- Agricultural productivity is a significant driver of the U.S. economy and U.S. agricultural products remain a key export, with FY 2015 agricultural exports totaling $139.7 billion.¹ The strength of the U.S. economy depends upon the U.S. maintaining its leadership role and competitive edge in this area.
- DuPont and Dow are two U.S.-based companies, each with a legacy of delivering unparalleled innovation to farmers. Joining forces into one focused agriculture company will enable us to respond more quickly to the changing conditions that impact farmers with superior products and competitive price for value, ultimately increasing grower productivity and profitability.

Cautionary Notes on Forward Looking Statements

This communication contains forward-looking statements within the meaning of the federal securities laws, including Section 27A of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, and Section 21E of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended. In this context, forward-looking statements often address expected future business and financial performance and financial condition, and often contain words such as expect, anticipate, intend, plan, believe, seek, see, will, would, target, similar expressions, and variations or negatives of these words. Forward-looking statements by their nature address matters that are, to different degrees, uncertain, such as statements about the consummation of the proposed transaction and the anticipated benefits thereof. These and other forward-looking statements, including the failure to consummate the proposed transaction or to make or take any filing or other action required to consummate such transaction on a timely matter or at all, are not guarantees of future results and are subject to risks, uncertainties and assumptions that could cause actual results to differ materially from those expressed in any forward-looking statements. Important risk factors that may cause such a difference include, but are not limited to, (i) the completion of the proposed transaction on anticipated terms and timing, including obtaining shareholder and regulatory approvals, anticipated tax treatment, unforeseen liabilities, future capital expenditures, revenues, expenses, earnings, synergies, economic performance, indebtedness, financial condition, losses, future prospects, business and management strategies for the management, expansion and growth of the new combined company's operations and other conditions to the completion of the merger, (ii) the ability of Dow and DuPont to integrate the business successfully and to achieve anticipated synergies, risks and costs and pursuit and/or implementation of the potential separations, including anticipated timing, any changes to the configuration of businesses included in the potential separation if implemented, (iii) the intended separation of the agriculture, material science and specialty products businesses of the combined company post-mergers in one or more tax efficient transactions on anticipated terms and timing, including a number of conditions which could delay, prevent or otherwise adversely affect the proposed transactions, including possible issues or delays in obtaining required regulatory approvals or clearances, disruptions in the financial markets or other potential barriers, (iv) potential litigation relating to the proposed transaction that could be instituted against Dow, DuPont or their respective directors, (v) the risk that disruptions from the proposed transaction will harm Dow's or DuPont's business, including current plans and operations, (vi) the ability of Dow or DuPont to retain and hire key personnel, (vii) potential adverse reactions or changes to business relationships resulting from the announcement or completion of the merger, (viii) uncertainty as to the long-term value of Dow/DuPont common stock, (ix) continued availability of capital and financing and rating agency actions, (x) legislative, regulatory and economic developments, (xi) potential business uncertainty, including changes to existing business relationships, during the pendency of the merger that could affect Dow's and/or DuPont's financial performance, (xii) certain restrictions during the pendency of the merger that may impact Dow's or DuPont's ability to pursue certain business opportunities or strategic transactions and (xiii) unpredictability and severity of catastrophic events, including, but not limited to, acts of terrorism or outbreak of war or hostilities, as well as management's response to any of the aforementioned factors. These risks, as well as other risks associated with the proposed merger, are more fully discussed in the joint proxy statement/prospectus included in the preliminary registration statement on Form S-4 filed with the SEC in connection with the proposed merger. While the list of factors presented here is, and the list of factors presented in the preliminary registration statement on Form S-4 are, considered representative, no such list should be considered to be a complete statement of all potential risks and uncertainties. Unlisted factors may present significant additional obstacles to the realization of forward looking statements. Consequences of material differences in results as compared with those anticipated in the forward-looking statements could include, among other things, business disruption, operational problems, financial loss, legal liability to third parties and similar risks, any of which could have a material adverse effect on Dow's or DuPont's consolidated financial condition, results of operations, credit rating or liquidity. Neither Dow nor DuPont assumes any obligation to publicly provide revisions or updates to any forward looking statements, whether as a result of new information, future developments or otherwise, should circumstances change, except as otherwise required by securities and other applicable laws.
