Dear Nuance Customers,

As you may already know, the boards of directors for Nuance and ScanSoft have unanimously agreed to a merger of the two companies. The merger will substantially strengthen the combined company's position as the leading, comprehensive provider of speech software solutions.

Whether you are an existing Nuance Voice Platform (NVP) customer or are in the process of purchasing NVP, we at ScanSoft would like to take this opportunity to outline our commitment to this product and to reassure you that we consider NVP a strategic asset within the current Nuance product portfolio. We understand that more than 100 companies rely on the NVP product to run their business-critical customer service functions, and it is clearly in the business interest of both ScanSoft and Nuance to serve our future, combined customers to the best of our ability.

Subsequent to the merger's close (anticipated in September), the combined company is committed to providing customers and partners with the go forward strategy for NVP. This strategy will include a plan for the ongoing support of NVP as well as a future development roadmap to best serve customer needs. In keeping with our corporate strategy of channel distribution, the plan will outline a channel friendly stance for the combined company. To support our plans, we expect to retain a strong engineering contingent at Nuance and as we have publicly stated, we plan to maintain the current Nuance facility in Menlo Park.

Both Nuance and ScanSoft share a deep commitment and passion to providing world-class solutions. In the event you have any questions concerning our future plans, I encourage you to either contact your respective Nuance account manager or contact me directly at (617) 428 4444.

Sincerely,

Steve Chambers

President, ScanSoft, Inc.
