The following questions and answers were made available on the EMC Corporation employee intranet.

Does the market price of EMC common stock and VMware common stock impact the amount of cash and tracking stock that EMC shareholders will receive upon close of the deal?

- a. EMC common stock and restricted stock units. The merger consideration for each EMC share will be $24.05 in cash and shares of a newly issued Class V common stock security (the tracking stock) of Denali, the parent company of Dell. Based on the number of EMC shares estimated to be outstanding at the close of the transaction, EMC shareholders are expected to receive approximately 0.111 shares of the tracking stock for each EMC share. The amount of cash per share of EMC common stock and number of shares of tracking stock to be received by EMC shareholders as consideration upon the close of the transaction were fixed at the time of signing the definitive agreement with Denali and are not subject to change as a result of changes in the market price of EMC common stock or VMware common stock. Similarly, the consideration payable to holders of restricted stock units upon the close of the transaction will be unaffected by changes in the market price of EMC common stock or VMware common stock.
- b. EMC stock options. The closing price of EMC common stock on the last trading day before the merger is completed will be used to determine the number of net EMC shares to be issued upon exercise of your EMC stock option. Once those shares are issued, however, the consideration payable in respect of such shares upon the close of the transaction will be unaffected by changes in the market price of EMC common stock or VMware common stock.

Note that we expect investors to look to the VMware Class A common stock as a relevant benchmark for the tracking stock. However, the market prices of the two stocks may not be directly correlated and the expected value of the tracking stock consideration may fluctuate based on a number of factors, including changes in the value of VMware common stock.

If I have purchased stock after the announcement of the EMC-Dell agreement on October 12, 2015, will I get the cash and tracking stock announced at the time of the deal close? Or, did I need to have those shares in hand prior to October 12?

Any EMC Corporation stock purchases you make between now and close will receive the cash and tracking stock as announced in the merger consideration. There is no difference in treatment between shares you purchased before or after October 12.

Will there be an option to defer payment of the cash and tracking stock that I receive for my accelerated EMC Restricted Stock Units or EMC Stock Options?

No.

May I buy or sell EMC shares now?

Yes, you are free to buy or sell EMC shares as you wish. However, all of the current rules and regulations still apply, including the trading window and being on a restricted list, as well as rules pertaining to insider information, etc.

How do I know if I should sell my stock before the deal closes?

The Company makes no recommendation regarding the purchase or sale of shares. Please consult your financial advisor.

Will VMware restricted shares or options accelerate as part of the EMC-Dell merger?

No, VMware is not a party to the merger agreement. VMware is currently a publicly traded company and will continue to be following the close of the EMC-Dell merger. Your VMware RSUs remain under the same VMware plan as when you received them, and follow their original vesting schedule.

Will my salary be adjusted upwards to reflect the gains I would have had through the EMC Employee Stock Purchase Program (ESPP)?

No.

How will the merger affect the EMC 401(k) Savings Plan?

As part of our integration efforts, we will provide more details about the effect of the merger on the EMC 401(k) Savings Plan in the future.

If my job is eliminated as part of EMC's business transformation efforts prior to the deal close, am I entitled to receive acceleration and merger consideration for any EMC restricted stock units or stock options that I am holding?

Yes, except with respect to certain grants that were made after October 12, 2015, generally you will be eligible for vesting of unvested EMC equity subject to your (i) executing, on a timely basis, a Separation Agreement and Release in the form approved by EMC, and (ii) your compliance with the terms and conditions of the Separation Agreement and Release.

Could you clarify how vested but unexercised EMC stock options (different from restricted stock units) will be handled? Do the options need to be exercised first? Will options be lost if not exercised at close?

Any unexercised options immediately prior to the deal closing will be canceled and converted into the right to receive the consideration payable to all EMC shareholders in the merger (cash and shares of tracking stock) with respect to the number of shares of EMC common stock issuable upon the exercise of such stock options upon a net exercise basis (full payment of the aggregate exercise price and applicable tax withholding will be satisfied by withholding a portion of the shares issuable, based on the closing market price of EMC's common stock on the last trading day prior to the deal closing).

When can employees exercise stock options?

Employees are able to exercise their vested stock options any time prior to the deal closing. All of the current rules and regulations apply, including the trading window and being on a restricted list, as well as rules pertaining to insider information, etc.

What happens to EMC stock options that are underwater (i.e., the exercise price is greater than the market price) at time of close?

If the exercise price of any outstanding options immediately prior to the deal closing equals or exceeds EMC's closing stock price on the last trading day prior to the deal close, such options will terminate as of the deal close and will not receive consideration in the merger.

Will we be having the EMC Annual Compensation Review (ACR) and Annual Equity Program (AEP) in 2016?

Yes, it is currently our plan to offer these programs in 2016. We will share specifics about how they will work next year.

There is much discussion over Dell keeping EMC's Hopkinton location, yet no mention of the other sites in the area, such as Southborough, Franklin, etc. Do we have any insight at this time?

Regarding EMC locations, there are no current plans to close sites as a result of the merger and this will be a subject of the integration planning going forward.

However, facilities review is currently an active part of the EMC Business Transformation that we announced at the end of Q2 and prior to the merger. As part of that effort we will be looking at our facilities usage and may close or consolidate as needed. We already started this process over the summer with the announced closure of 80 South Street in Hopkinton, and have been relocating employees to other buildings in the immediate area.
