Forward-Looking Statements

This communication includes certain forward-looking statements. These statements are based on the current expectations of the Banks and are naturally subject to uncertainty and changes in certain circumstances. Forward-looking statements include any synergy statements and, without limitation, other statements typically containing words such as intends, expects, anticipates, targets, plans, estimates and words of similar import. In nature, forward-looking statements involve risk and uncertainty because they relate to events and depend on circumstances that will occur in the future. There are a number of factors that could cause actual results and developments to differ materially from those expressed or implied by such forward-looking statements. These factors include, but are not limited to, the presence of a competitive offer for ABN AMRO, satisfaction of any pre-conditions or conditions to the potential transaction, including receipt of required regulatory and anti-trust approvals, the successful completion of the offer or any subsequent compulsory acquisition procedure, the anticipated benefits of the potential transaction (including anticipated synergies) not being realized, the separation and integration of ABN AMRO and its assets among the Banks being materially delayed or more costly or difficult than expected, as well as additional factors, such as changes in economic conditions, changes in the regulatory environment, fluctuations in interest and exchange rates, the outcome of litigation and government actions. Other unknown or unpredictable factors could cause actual results to differ materially from those in the forward-looking statements. None of the Banks undertake any obligation to update publicly or revise forward-looking statements, whether as a result of new information, future events or otherwise, except to the extent legally required.

On June 6, 2007, Fortis, Royal Bank of Scotland and Santander issued the following joint press release:

Welcoming Monday's statement from the UNI Confederation of Trade Unions, Mr Neil Roden, Group Director of Human Resources for RBS, confirmed that he would be contacting UNI on behalf of Fortis, RBS and Santander (collectively, the Banks) to seek a meeting.

We welcome the Trade Unions' positive engagement in the process and would hope to maintain a constructive dialogue with them at all times. We understand the demands that they are making and will work with them as closely as possible to ensure that our proposals are understood clearly.

Mr Michel Deboeck, Chief Human Resources Officer for Fortis, added, "We have very constructive working relationships with unions and works councils and I am confident of our track record in building opportunities for people as our business interests grow."

For his part, Mr José Luis Gómez Alciturri, Head of Human Resources for Santander, commented on the constructive communication currently being held with the employee representative organisations. "I believe it is especially important to maintain a cooperative framework and appropriate dialogue with all social partners in working to create profitable businesses within a stable environment for employees."
