Item 5. Other Events and Regulation FD Disclosure.

On June 15, 2004, an accident occurred at the Company's aircraft hangar located at the Yates County Airport in Penn Yan, New York. A collision occurred between an automobile owned by an employee of an aircraft service company doing contract work at the Company's hangar and two jet aircraft standing in the hangar. The incident caused minor damage to the hangar and one of the airplanes and substantial damage to the wing of the second airplane, which will not be airworthy until the wing has been replaced. A corporate customer of the Company's Flight Division shares ownership with the Company of the less-damaged aircraft and has sole ownership of the more-damaged aircraft.

The total cost of repairs to both aircraft has not been definitively established, but the Company and the aircraft owner maintain sufficient insurance to cover all repair costs to both aircraft. However, certain damages resulting from this incident will not be covered or fully covered by these insurances. These damages primarily include (1) the owner's use of substitute aircraft for the business flights which would have been performed by the damaged aircraft and (2) the impairment, if any, of the aircraft's value notwithstanding complete repair. At present, the Company cannot reliably estimate the extent of the losses, and, based on preliminary and incomplete information, it estimates the damages (exclusive of repair costs) to be in the range of $1.5 million to $6 million.

At this early date after the incident, the Company is unable to ascertain to what extent the damages will be covered by the aircraft service company's insurance or other sources, or whether the claims of the Company and the aircraft owner can be resolved without litigation.
