Dear Shareholder,

Proposed Merger with American General Corporation

As we go to press with Annual Report 2000, the Board has announced its agreement of terms for the proposed merger of Prudential plc with American General Corporation, a leading financial services organisation in the United States.

Edgar Filing: AMERICAN GENERAL CORP /TX/ - Form 425

American General, headquartered in Houston, Texas, is the second largest publicly traded life insurance company in the US, and one of the US' largest providers of retirement services, life insurance, consumer loans and investments to over 12 million customers. It has total assets under management in excess of US$120 billion and a market capitalisation as at 9 March 2001 (the last trading day prior to the announcement of the proposed merger) of approximately US$19 billion.

As you will know, through Jackson National Life, Prudential already has a significant presence in the US. This merger with American General will further enhance that presence, making Prudential a leader in a number of key product areas in the world's largest insurance and retirement services market. American General has developed a powerful multi-brand, multi-channel business model that complements perfectly Jackson National Life's own high quality operations, with very little overlap.

This merger will not only give us a leading position in the US, but, just as importantly, it will also give us the scale and financial strength to allow for continued expansion and faster growth in the other regions of the world in which we operate.

American General shares our fundamental business culture focused on delivering shareholder value. The Board unanimously believes that together Prudential and American General will create a top-tier international financial services business of world importance, with leading positions in the US, the UK and Asian markets.

This proposal has the full support of the Prudential Board. All shareholders will have the opportunity to ask questions about the proposed merger and to vote on it at our Extraordinary General Meeting, the date of which will be announced shortly.

Yours sincerely,
/s/ Roger Hurn

Sir Roger Hurn
Chairman
