Mylan Responds to Icahn's 13D Filing

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 20 Mylan Laboratories Inc. (NYSE: MYL) today commented on Carl Icahn's 13D filing dated September 17, 2004.

Robert J. Coury, Mylan's Vice Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, confirmed, "I and other members of Mylan's management team met with Mr. Icahn, on September 10, 2004. We provided him the same information contained in our preliminary proxy statement filed with the SEC and amplified in meetings that we have had with more than 100 institutional investors since Mylan announced the planned acquisition of King Pharmaceuticals, Inc. I originally suggested the meeting because I was concerned that Mr. Icahn did not have an accurate understanding of the generics industry and specifically Mylan's business.

Early into the meeting these concerns were confirmed and we spent most of the meeting trying to educate Mr. Icahn about the dynamics of the generic pharmaceutical industry. At the end of the productive meeting we suggested another meeting with Mr. Icahn to continue our dialogue to help him further understand the state of the generics industry and the compelling logic behind the King acquisition. Furthermore, I suggested that, in light of his level of understanding, Mr. Icahn should retain a generic industry expert to rely on for that meeting, and he agreed.

We caution investors not to rely on Carl Icahn's view because we believe that he doesn't understand the potential value that a Mylan King combination will create. As previously announced, we will conduct a conference call on November 1, 2004 followed by an investor roadshow, to provide additional information on the opportunities provided by the King acquisition and nebivolol, as well as financial guidance on a prospective basis for the combined company and for Mylan on a stand-alone basis.

Mylan's Board of Directors is unanimous in its support of this transaction and believes that the pending merger of King Pharmaceuticals will optimize value for all shareholders by the creation of a leading specialty pharmaceutical company.

About Mylan Laboratories:
