FRONTIER OIL AND HOLLY CORP.
SIGN MERGER AGREEMENT

HOUSTON, TEXAS, March 31, 2003 Frontier Oil Corporation (NYSE: FTO) and Holly Corporation (AMEX: HOC) announced today they have entered into an agreement pursuant to which the two companies will merge. The merged company will be called Frontier Oil Corporation and will be headquartered in Houston, Texas. Following the merger, Frontier will own five refineries with refining capacity in excess of 260,000 barrels-per-day (bpd), including several highly complex, niche refineries.

Terms of the deal provide for Holly stockholders to receive one share of Frontier common stock for each outstanding share of Holly common stock, plus an aggregate cash payment of $172.5 million (or approximately $11.11 per Holly common share based on the current number of outstanding Holly shares). The stock and cash merger consideration would have a value of approximately $28.96 per Holly share, which represents a premium of 31% to Holly's stockholders, based on the closing prices for both companies on Friday, March 28. Holly has approximately 15.5 million common shares outstanding, and Frontier has approximately 26.1 million common shares outstanding. Holly stockholders will also retain a non-transferable interest in potential future recoveries in litigation related to past sales of jet fuel to the United States government. The transaction is expected to be non-taxable to the shareholders of both companies, except for the cash to be received by Holly stockholders. The agreement between the companies contains reciprocal provisions for the payment of $15 million termination fees under certain circumstances.

Frontier, headquartered in Houston, operates a 110,000 bpd refinery located in El Dorado, Kansas and a 46,000 bpd refinery located in Cheyenne, Wyoming. Holly, headquartered in Dallas, Texas, operates a 60,000 bpd refinery located in Artesia, New Mexico that is being expanded to 75,000 bpd and a 7,500 bpd refinery in Great Falls, Montana. Holly also operates approximately 2,000 miles of crude oil and refined product pipelines in the west Texas and New Mexico region, Permian Basin crude gathering operations and refined product terminals. Additionally, Holly has an agreement to acquire the 25,000 bpd Woods Cross (Salt Lake City) refinery owned by ConocoPhillips.

Frontier's Chairman, President, and CEO, James Gibbs said, "Frontier and Holly are two of the most highly profitable public independent refining companies. This strategic combination will produce not only the preeminent Rocky Mountain refiner, but also the strongest balance sheet among its peers. The opportunity to build our enterprise through the combination of skills and assets represented by Frontier and Holly is tremendous. We expect to deliver significant growth to our shareholders. The combination is expected to be accretive to our shareholders. We are extremely excited by this combination and eagerly look forward to what we can accomplish together. After diligently looking for the right opportunity for over a year, we believe this is the best possible strategic combination for both companies.

Holly Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Lamar Norsworthy said, "We are extremely pleased with the combination of our two businesses. We are proud of what we have accomplished at Holly and we have a very high regard for Frontier and its management. This merger allows our stockholders to continue to participate in this significantly larger, more geographically diversified and more widely followed company through their almost 40% ownership in the combined company.

Jim Gibbs will serve as President and Chief Executive Officer of Frontier after the merger and Lamar Norsworthy, Holly's Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer, will serve as Chairman of the Board of Frontier. The Board and its major committees will be made up of equal numbers of directors from each company. Completion of the planned merger is subject to, among other things, receiving shareholder approvals by both companies and other customary closing conditions, as well as expiration of the Hart-Scott-Rodino waiting period.

RE: Holly and Frontier Merger

Today Holly Corporation (Holly) and Frontier Oil Corporation (Frontier) announced that the Boards of Directors of both companies have unanimously approved an agreement pursuant to which the two companies will merge. The combined company will be named Frontier Oil Corporation and will be headquartered in Houston, Texas. Holly will maintain a fifty percent representation on the Board of Directors of the combined company. Holly's Chairman and CEO, Lamar Norsworthy, will become Chairman of Frontier and Jim Gibbs, currently Chairman, CEO and President of Frontier, will become CEO and President of the combined company.

Holly's shareholders will receive one share of Frontier stock for each share of Holly stock plus a cash payment equal to approximately $11 per share. Completion of the merger is subject to, among other things, receiving shareholder and regulatory approvals.

Frontier owns two complex refineries in El Dorado, Kansas and Cheyenne, Wyoming. The capacity of these refineries is 110,000 and 46,000 barrels per day, respectively. The total refining capacity after the merger will be over 260,000 barrels per day, once the Woods Cross acquisition closes and Navajo's current expansion is complete.

This merger will create a strong independent refiner geographically concentrated in the fastest growing areas of the country, the Rockies and the Southwest. The new Frontier will combine the number one and number two companies in terms of rate of return among independent refiners over the last five years. The combined company will be twice the size of Holly and will improve our competitive position by optimizing the operating facilities, logistics and expertise of the two companies while maintaining one of the lowest net debt to equity ratios among the independent refiners.

Over the next several weeks, Holly and Frontier will determine the composition of its top management team and will then focus on the most efficient manner to support the combined operating facilities. There are no plans to close any of the current Holly or Frontier office locations.

We believe this merger represents a unique win-win situation for our shareholders, our employees and the communities we serve by creating a stronger, larger and more diverse company that will be positioned to capitalize on the unique expertise, ingenuity and hard work that our company's employees have demonstrated.

We will strive to keep each of you informed as further progress is made in our planning process.
