- We expect to close the acquisition in February 2014.

6. Was the NuPathe board vote unanimous?

7. Do you need to have a shareholder vote?

ii. Following successful completion of the tender offer, Teva will acquire all remaining shares not tendered in the tender offer through a second-step merger at the same price and the obligation to make the same contingent cash consideration payments as was deliverable to those stockholders tendering their shares in the tender offer.

8. Do shareholders have any appraisal rights with respect to the transaction?

9. Have your major shareholders committed to vote for the acquisition?

- Our board unanimously approved this transaction.
- Voting agreements were not required to be delivered in connection with the execution of the merger agreement.

11. Is antitrust review expected?

- The parties do not presently expect that the transaction will be subject to customary regulatory conditions, but in case it becomes subject to it, the parties have provided that the tender offer will be contingent upon the expiration or termination of the waiting period thereunder.

12. How are outstanding NuPathe warrants being treated?

- They will be treated pursuant to their terms.
- Prior to close, warrant holders may exercise their warrants for NuPathe common stock to tender in the transaction.
- Post-close, warrants holders will be entitled to deal consideration pursuant to the terms of the specific warrant.

NuPathe-Specific Strategy

1. Why did you choose to approve the sale of NuPathe to Teva vs. Endo?

- Management and the Board evaluated both offers, and our board unanimously approved the Teva transaction. The Teva offer represents a premium of $0.80 per share (or 28%) over the upfront cash consideration offered by Endo, with an equal amount of contingent cash consideration as offered by Endo.
- The tender offer documents, to be filed with the SEC, will contain detailed information concerning the terms of the transaction and the details of the strategic process undertaken by the NuPathe board over the last few months and its rationale and reasons for approving the transaction.

2. Why did you sell NuPathe instead of out-licensing ZECUITY?

- Management and the Board evaluated multiple options and our board unanimously approved this transaction.
- The tender offer documents, to be filed with the SEC, will contain detailed information concerning the terms of the transaction and the details of the strategic process undertaken by the NuPathe board over the last few months and its rationale and reasons for approving the transaction.

3. Were there multiple bidders for the acquisition? If multiple bidders, why did you choose Teva?

- Management and the Board evaluated multiple options, including the previously announced Endo offer, and our board unanimously approved this transaction.
- We believe that Teva is very well positioned to maximize the value of ZECUITY given their commercial experience and leadership in CNS. We believe they are committed to ZECUITY.
- The tender offer documents, to be filed with the SEC, will contain detailed information concerning the terms of the transaction and the details of the strategic process undertaken by the NuPathe board over the last few months and its rationale and reasons for approving the transaction.

Teva-Specific

1. How many sales reps will Teva have on ZECUITY?

- While we understand that Teva is still in the process of finalizing its commercial strategy for ZECUITY, we believe that Teva expects to launch ZECUITY in Mid-2014.

3. Will Teva retain any of the NuPathe commercial team in order to potentially speed up adoption of ZECUITY?

4. How quickly does Teva think they can hit the $100M sales milestone? $300M milestone?

- While we understand that Teva is still in the process of finalizing its commercial strategy for ZECUITY and Teva generally does not set expectations for individual products, the company believes that there is potential for both sales milestones to be achieved prior to the 60th day following the nine-year anniversary of the launch of ZECUITY; however, as with any product, there are multitude of substantial risks to commercialization and there can be no assurances that the product will be launched, or if launched, that it will generate any meaningful sales.

5. Does Teva have any marketed/development-stage products that might compete with ZECUITY leading Teva to potentially promote those products over ZECUITY, in order to avoid paying out CVR?

6. Does Teva have an estimate for likely peak sales for ZECUITY?

- While Teva generally does not set expectations for individual products, the company believes that there is potential for both sales milestones to be achieved prior to the 60th day following the nine-year anniversary of the launch of ZECUITY; however, as with any product, there are multitude of substantial risks to commercialization and there can be no assurances that the product will be launched, or if launched, that it will generate any meaningful sales.

7. What will happen to my stock options?

- All of your stock options will vest and be cancelled in connection with the merger. After the closing of the merger, you will have the right to receive, at the earliest date at which the sum of the initial cash consideration of $3.65 per share plus the amount per share previously paid or to be paid at such date in connection with the contingent cash consideration agreement exceeds the per-share exercise price of the option:

- an amount in cash equal to the number of shares of common stock subject to each option multiplied by the excess of the sum described above over the per-share exercise price under such option (subject to applicable tax withholdings); and
- the right to receive, for each share of common stock subject to such option, each contingent cash consideration payment that has not yet become payable at such date pursuant to the terms of the contingent cash consideration agreement.

- The following table illustrates the amounts payable with respect to options with various assumed per-share exercise prices:

$ 4.00	$ 0.00	$ 1.80	$ 1.00

8. What will happen to my restricted stock units (RSUs) and restricted stock (RSAs)?

Shortly after the closing of the merger, you will receive a cash payment of $3.65 for each share underlying each RSU and each RSA. In addition, you will have the right to receive certain contingent cash consideration payments if specified net sales milestones for ZECUITY are achieved over time.
- For example, if you hold an RSU or RSA that will vest into 1 share, you will receive a cash payment equal to $3.65, less applicable withholding taxes, plus one right to receive the contingent cash consideration payments.

9. What will happen to my 2013 bonus?

- 2013 bonuses will be determined in the ordinary course and consistent with past practice.

10. What will happen to my account balance in the 401(k) Plan?

- Upon Teva's request, NuPathe's 401(k) plan will be terminated prior to the closing and your account balance will be distributed to you, after which you will have an opportunity to roll over the balance into another plan. You should discuss the handling of your 401(k) account balance with your tax advisor. If the plan is terminated, Teva will allow any employees who are employed by Teva following the closing to make a rollover contribution of any distributed amounts into Teva's 401(k) plan. Any outstanding loans any continuing employee may have under NuPathe's 401(k) plan may also be transferred to Teva's 401(k) plan.
