SHANDA AND BAIDU FORGE STRATEGIC PARTNERSHIP

SHANGHAI, CHINA - MARCH 24, 2005 - Shanda Interactive Entertainment Limited (Nasdaq: SNDA), the largest operator of online games in China, today announced a strategic partnership with Baidu.com, Inc., developer and operator of the world's largest Chinese language search engine. Pursuant to a memorandum of understanding, Baidu will leverage its search platform to help introduce Shanda's interactive entertainment content offerings to a broad audience base, and Shanda will have Baidu's search tools embedded in Shanda's user platform, further strengthening Baidu's leadership position in the search market. In addition, the two companies will explore cross marketing opportunities on each other's platform.

According to International Data Corporation, or IDC, a leading market research firm, the online population in China reached approximately 90 million in 2004 and is expected to grow to 170 million by 2009. At the same time, an increasing amount of multimedia entertainment content is becoming available through the Internet, increasing the need for fast, efficient and comprehensive web search tools for such content. The strategic cooperation between Shanda, the leading interactive entertainment content provider in China, and Baidu, the largest Chinese language search engine, will better serve the consumers' rapidly evolving Internet entertainment needs.

"We are delighted about the opportunity to cooperate with Shanda. We believe this cooperation will help to improve our users' search experience as well as enable us to reach more users with specific needs for interactive entertainment content," said Robin Li, chief executive officer of Baidu.

"Making our content offerings more easily available to a broader user base is consistent with our strategy to become the leader of interactive entertainment in China. The strategic cooperation with Baidu is an important step toward this goal," said Tianqiao Chen, chief executive officer of Shanda. "In addition, having Baidu's search engine available on our platform brings more convenience and value to our users."
